

MARQ

MALBEC

---

This classic Bordeaux variety has never received its due recognition. It produces wines that are deeply coloured with intense sweet fruit and velvety tannins – everything a good wine should be. It can be viticulturally challenging and perhaps this is why it is more commonly used as a blending variety, but grown on the right site it can yield amazing results.

COLOR

Deep red with a purple hue.

AROMA

A lifted aroma of violets, red fruits, dark fruits and blackberry with plum skin, forest floor, and rum & raisin characters.

PALATE

It is a full bodied richly flavoured wine with intense sweet fruit. This wine is juicy and fleshy with noticeable oak that adds just an element of grip and structure to this otherwise silky soft wine.

REGION

Wilyabrup.

WINEMAKING & VITICULTURE

The grapes are grown in the heart of Margaret River at Wilyabrup. The grapes are crushed into small open fermenters and fermented on skins for 14 days before pressing. After a short period of settling in tank the wine is transferred to new, one and two year old barrels for aging for a period of 14 months.
